Minimum Wages

Well informed farmers are glad to acknowledge their debt to professional agriculturists. They know that improved varieties of crop plants and methods for protecting plants and animals from diseases, insects, etc., are developed largely through the work of scientifically trained men. By and large, these men are grossly underpaid. Men with similar, sometimes inferior ability, training and experience commonly earn much more in other professions. Most of our scientific agriculturists are in government employ. Salaries of professional workers are, in general, much lower in departments of agriculture than in other government departments.

Entirely aside from fair treatment, two considerations merit the immediate attention of farmers. In recent months several of our best workers have received very attractive offers from the United States. These offers will probably increase in the near future, and many will be accepted as "exit permits" become available. Good-bye to our best men.

The second consideration is this. Students must decide early in their university careers what type of work they will follow. If they discover that six to eight years of university training in agricultural science -- a costly business -- will be rewarded with a salary little better than that demanded by unskilled labour, they will turn to something else. In other words, we cannot expect to continue to get first-class talent for third-class pay.

Peace And Plenty

IT IS BECOMING APPARENT that the old axiom regarding "peace and plenty" does not apply in these times and that the end of the war in Europe has been marked by very little relaxation of wartime restrictions in buying. On the contrary, it has been made clear that we may expect even greater restrictions in some lines. Regulations affecting food are probably of the greatest concern to most people, and food rationing has no doubt caused some inconvenience. However, it cannot be said to have caused any real hardship here, and even should it become necessary to increase the scope of the present system of rationing, the people of Canada would still be able to secure sufficient food for a more than adequate diet. When we compare our lot with that of people in other countries, and particularly when we contemplate conditions in liberated Europe, we cannot fail to realize how fortunate we have been in respect to food supplies.

Many To Share In Undertaking

It should be remembered that any sacrifices we may be asked to make will be for the purpose of making food available for the starving people of Europe. It should also be remembered that we are sharing in this undertaking with Great Britain, the United States and the other Allied nations who are in a position to help. Contrary to some reports which have circulated here, food from the Allied nations is not being sent to the people of Germany. They have been made fully responsible for their own food production and it has been made clear that they will receive no outside help in this matter. The low standard of living which prevailed in Europe during the years of the German occupation resulted in widespread malnutrition among the people there, and there is great need now for sufficient supplies of nourishing food to restore them to health. We can help in this great undertaking by cheerfully making whatever sacrifices that may be required of us for this purpose.

Shortages In Other Lands

We are reminded that other countries will also experience acute shortages during the rehabilitation period. Throughout the war the people of Britain have had rationing on a much more extensive scale than any which has been introduced here. Instead of an easing of restrictions, however, there has been a reduction in food rations there since the end of the war in Europe. These include a decrease in the meat ration from 116 to 100 pounds per person a year; a reduction of 300,000 tons in the yearly supply of sugar; and a decrease of 350,000 tons in fats and oils. Canadians are familiar with the shortage of meat which has existed in the United States for some time now, and we are also aware of other food shortages there. In view of all this it is clear that we can expect no return to peace and plenty here until conditions throughout the world are greatly improved.

Fought Grim Battle

But Work Of British Minewepers Got Little Publicity

The saga of the long, little-publicized struggle of British minewepers during the war in Europe in which they swept up a total of 16,000 mines, has been disclosed by the Admiralty.

The cost of this grim silent battle was 287 vessels. Of these 99 fell victim to mining and 68 to attacks from the air.

German minelaying, which on the night of May 1, 1941, less than a fortnight before the German assault in France, blocked five British and three French ports—Sunderland, Hartlepool, Middlesbrough, Blyth, Dunbarton, Calais and Boulogne—had at the outbreak of war to be countered with about 36 minewepers and 40 trawlers. Today, the statement said, 1,350 minewepers fly the British colors.

The seagoing personnel of the service has similarly increased from 2,000 at the outbreak of the war to 50,000 now.

In September, 1939, the Germans were believed to have about 100,000 moored contact mines to start their offensive. The first fields were moored in the east of the Humber, on Britain's east coast. Toward the first of December of war, mines also appeared as far south as the Channel port of Dover, while German planes laid magnetic mines in the English Channel, to the Thames, to Bristol and off Swansea, on the coast of South Wales.

In January, 1940, losses reached the peak figure of 90,000 tons of shipping, but after that British counter-measure took effect.

Price Control And Rationing Information

Q.—I am a farmer and will have temporary help for about ten days. Will I be able to obtain rations for his meals?

A.—Farmers and other rural dwellers who employ extra help for periods of less than two weeks for specific and definite purposes, such as harvesting, haying, etc., may apply to their Local Ration Board for transient labour rations. However, applications covering less than 12 meals in all will not be granted rations. Where transient labourers are receiving all of their meals from the applicant, coupons are to be granted on the basis of five meals per man per day.

Q.—Are summer cottages under rent control regulations?

A.—Summer cottages may not be rented for more than the amount charged during the summer of 1941. Any cottage being rented for the first time must have the rate fixed by the rentals administration of the Price Board.

Q.—How many coupons should a hotelkeeper collect from a guest staying one month?

A.—A hotelkeeper collects three butter coupons, one sugar coupon and two preserve coupons for every four-week period.

Q.—Since the cut in the sugar ration, how much is each coupon worth?

A.—Every valid sugar coupon is good for the purchase of one pound of sugar, and every valid preserves coupon is good for the purchase of half a pound of sugar. The sugar ration is cut by postponing the valid date of certain coupons.

Grocer—"These are the best we've had for years."

Bride—"Well, send me some you haven't had quite so long."

Smith—"How is your wife getting along with her driving lessons?"

Jones—"Fine. The road is beginning to turn now when she does."

Else: "What kind of a husband would you advise me to get, grandma?"

Grandma: "You just leave husbands alone and get yourself a single man."

Actor: "I always aim to be the character I play, so I should like real food and drink in that banquet scene."

Theatre Manager: "Then I suppose you will want real poison in that act where you bump yourself off."

Mrs. Johnson (learning to drive): "Henry, that little mirror up there isn't set right."

Hubby: "Isn't it?"

Mrs. J.: "No, I can't see anything but the car behind!"

"It appears to be your record, Jin", said the judge, "that you have already been before this court 15 times!"

"I guess that's right, your honor," answered the tramp: "none of us are perfect!"

Tom—Look at that sign. John—What does it say?

Tom—It says: "Ladies ready-to-wear clothes!"

John—"Well, it's nearly time, isn't it?"

"What's the fundamental difference between a man and a woman?"

"A man will pay $2 for a $1 article he wants, while a woman will pay $1 for a $2 article she doesn't want."

Young Private Jones slunk on to the parade ground ten minutes late.

The sergeant glared, then said, with icy sarcasm: "So you have decided to come on parade. We were afraid you had signed a separate peace!"

"What are you turning around for, John?"

"I've just discovered we've come five hundred and ten miles since morning; we'll have to run back to the five hundred mile mark and change the oil."

Kept His Promise

Charity Benefits Because Of Strange Offer By One Londoner

Due to an anonymous man's strange and generous offer, the family of some soldier, sailor or airman will benefit by more than $100 (approximately $450) from the Soldiers', Sailors' and Airmen's Families Association Fund.

When the V-bomb attacks were at their height in July last year this man told his family he was prepared to pay $5 to war charities for every week of danger so long as his house, family, office premises and staff remained safe. He did this for 41 weeks.

A few days before the end of London's rocket ordeal a V-2 landed within 100 yards of his house, causing some damage. But this man decided that, since other homes in the neighborhood were completely wrecked, such a "trifling matter" as his own ceilings, roof and windows must not be allowed to make him break his promise.

He sent his cheque to the S.S.A.-F.A. with the request that it be used to help toward the education of a service man's child or to help a war widow.

WITS SAVED HIM—Marine Lieut. George Thompson, above, and four other marines came upon 350 Japs in a clearing in Okinawa. While talking to his command post over his walkie-talkie, Thompson used psychological warfare to prevent the Japs from opening fire on his group. He made the Japs gifts of four packs of cigarettes which kept them docile. Then suddenly the Japs began committing suicide right in front of the Yanks. Over 150 of them blew themselves to bits, taking their women with them.

Danger In Air

Reported, That Flying Geese Have Been Killed By Lightning

Can a flying geese be killed by lightning? The mysterious death of some 75 geese near Devil's Lake, North Dakota, has raised the question. North Dakota Outdoors, published by the game and fish department of the neighboring state, says department officials are baffled by the case.

The publication quotes a communication, however, from the General Electric Research laboratories, as follows:

"There is no reason why geese flying in an area in which a lightning discharge has taken place should not be killed by the lightning stroke just as holes are burned in a plane. If the geese were protected by a metal body they, too, probably would suffer too seriously from the lightning stroke."

PEACE AND QUIET BY THE ACORE

Twenty-two acres of peace and quiet set in the midst of green lawns, luxuriant trees and flowers, and acres of fresh fruits and vegetables is the popular service-women's centre at Oakville, Ont. It was established last January specifically for women of the three services, Wrens, CWACs and W.D.s, and is designed to offer rest and relaxation. The training officer is Capt. Betty Anderson, of Edmonton, Alta., who supervises physical fitness classes for patients and staffs; military discipline is kept at a minimum. Nobody wants to "murder the bugler" at Oakville, for patients are allowed to sleep in mornings until ten o'clock, unless they are slated for a P.T. class or for light housekeeping duties.

The daily program of activities open to them includes handicraft instruction; dancing classes; swimming lessons in the Centre's own pool; bicycle trips, movies and educational films and current affairs discussion groups. Dances are held frequently, with the guests invited from other service centres. Most of the servicewomen patients spend from three to four weeks at the Health Centre and there find the rest and relaxation they need.

PROMOTED—

Cpl. Alma Spencer, daughter of Mrs. Alma Spencer, Saskatoon, has recently been promoted to the rank of sergeant in the Canadian Women's Army Corps. Sgt. Spencer enlisted in October, 1945 and following her basic training took a clerk's course in Winnipeg. She is now employed in the Orderly Room of the Directorate of Medical Services, N.D.H.Q. Another, L-Cpl. Russell Spencer is serving in the Provost Corps of the Canadian Army.

ENLIST—

Several girls, mainly from rural Saskatchewan, enlisted in the Canadian Women's Army Corps at Regina recently. Included among them were: Bernadette Gervais, Estevan; Irene Piesard, Moose Jaw; Rebecca Patterley, Stawart; Ruth Nordstrom, Canwood; Mildred Sandberg, Cutknife; Dorothy Davenport, Cutknife; Anastasia Ackerman, Denzil.

CITADEL CWACs—

The first group of girls ever to belong to the Royal Canadian Artillery, the Anti-Aircraft Operations Room CWACs at historic Halifax Citadel, has been disbanded. Once so menacing, danger from the skies no longer threatens Canada and the work of the girls as plotters, telephone operators and messengers has been lightened. Although they never kept a ceaseless vigil from within the Fortress walls for three years of war, it was not until Germany was crushed and the Battle of the Atlantic relegated to the history books, that the Citadel CWACs took off their headphones, powdered their noses and called it a day. Now they are being posted to other duties in various parts of Canada. Tradition was shattered and cobwebby precedent tossed into the discard when in Sept. 1945, Lt. E. Greenberg, Winnipeg, and her group of 14 CWACs moved into the Citadel to help the artillery-men in their vital task of guarding the skies. For the first time in its long career the Fortress housed women "gunners". Among the Western girls stationed at the Citadel were: Gays, M. P. Barclay, Leithbridge; E. L. Dombrosky, Calgary; B. Y. Douglas, Regina; E. Ellis, Winnipeg; D. M. Joyce, Winnipeg; M. D. King, Winnipeg; E. M. Malpas, Calgary; D. I. McHugh, Winnipeg; F. L. Sundstrom, Calgary; and E. A. Redhead, Calgary.

OUR COMPLETE
SHORT STORY—

Romance, Limited

— By —

ARTHUR ST. CLAIRE

McClure Newspaper Syndicate

There's no doubt about it—Sally Lane was born many years too late. She just didn't belong in this matter-of-fact whirling world of today, stripped of romanticism and chivalry. No indeed, she would have been much happier yea back when men were unflinching in their gallantry toward women.

Swing music veared here—how soothing the strains of strings and flute must have been. Jitterbugs appalled her, but ah, the minstrel—Sally loved history. At least that part which dealt with famous women and the attentions showered upon them by their lovers. Du Barry... de Maintenon... Cleopatra... Josephine... Lady Hamilton. She knew them all... she envied them.

Alex, a young plumber, had asked Sally to marry him, but Sally could not bring herself to say yes. And one can hardly blame her. Then fate took a hand. Sally met Armand Delacruz, reeking with Shakespeare and poetic phrases, both on the stage and off. The stage? Well... the little community theatre.

"Pie on this, my stupid tongue, which knows no better word than... charmed," is actually what he said upon his introduction to her. Right off page forty-three, but it clicked with Sally. And the deep courteous bow that went with it. Oh, hey! He walked toward her. She didn't say a word; just drank in his every word and gesture, and this Armand had plenty on the ball. He left her at her door, fluently rolling off, "this said, fond parting," and... believe it or not, kisser. And with a great and dignified flourish, Sally went down for the third strike.

In bed that night, after Armand around, there he was in her mind's eye, cutting a wide swath in the court of Elizabeth... garbed in flowing scarlet cape, unadorned steel in doublet, striped tights, clinking sword, Cordovan boots and a little Vandike beard. The beard she shaved off instantly... it didn't become him.

But when she saw him the next night, he was somehow still wearing the same shabby tread. Sally didn't mind because he took her to an expensive little Italian restaurant, where she learned about... a jug of wine and thou... Nowhere in this little, wide world could Armand have found a better audience than Sally Lane.

The night he gave her a load of the Indian Love Lyrics, they were rowing on the lake in Central Park. He'd just rested the oars when he said, "... whether you drifted down my way... on the great sad river of chance and change... who shall say..." The boat was drifting toward a motor launch filled with squealing youngsters, and when Armand had successfully dodged it, he further quoted, "... take what fate or the gods may give..."

Sally couldn't wait until morning to tell her mother that Armand had at last expressed his love for her... undeniably. "Mother... Mother," she said after waking her, "he's so grand... so romantic."

"That's fine. Go to bed," said her mother.

"Mother... he's so grand... so romantic! I think... I think he's going to ask me to marry him."

"Nonsense. You're too young to get married," said her mother, fully awake.

"Oh, Mother, I'm not. Mary Queen of Scots was betrothed when she was fourteen."

"And beheaded at forty," her mother replied.

Sally shuddered. "What has that to do with me?"

"Nothing, I guess. But what about Alex? He's a fine boy."

"He's just a plumber... so unromantic."

"Unromantic at eight or nine dollars a day?"

"I know, Mother, but it's not really money that counts. It's romance."

"It counts a little," Sally's mother opined quietly. "What does this Armand do for a living?"

"He's an actor... he's marvellous... if someone would give him a spear, in Julius Caesar."

"Actor... hm-m, said her mother. "He says such lovely things."

"Did you ever try eating lovely things?"

"Mother, you're so... so twentieth century. No one understands my fine temperament."

With that Sally stomped off to bed. She was eighteen, and when Armand asked her, she'd say Yes, even if her mother did not approve. That was settled.

Errol Flynn would have turned green with envy, if he could have peeked into Sally's dream that night and seen Armand's Robin Hood.

"Don't do anything foolish, Sally dear," cautioned her mother, as Sally left next evening to meet Armand by the corner dog store.

"Oh, if we but could find a world apart... and leave this noisy town behind," was the way he greeted her. Honest! He made it up himself, that one.

"How about the park, Armand?" Sally cooed. To herself she said "I knew it... I knew it... he's going to ask me."

Over hill and dale of Merrie England, they strolled in Central Park. There was a moon... a tiny crescent, but "a moon for a' that," Armand said. He was really at his best to-night. Listen "At last, a secret nook, that mortal eyes ne'er have seen..." "You could hardly blame Sally for being thrilled. Could you now?"

They sat on a marble bench. Sally gazed at Armand and Armand gazed at her. He kissed her. She kissed him. "Sally," said Armand impressively.

She thought she'd swoon. "Yes, Armand," she purred, waiting for him to fall on bended knee.

"Sally," said Armand, "I'm nuts about you... let's get hitched."

Note: One year later Sally married Alex.

Duke of Gloucester Visited King and Natives Of New Guinea

Ninji, king of 20,000 natives of the Mount Hager region of New Guinea, greeted the Duke of Gloucester, Governor-General of Australia, and then in an address reminded his own barefoot natives and constables that the Duke was:

"Brother true belong King, one fella poppa, one fella momma."

He told them he had come to "Look at you fella New Guinea, and speak true belong you," to which the Duke replied he was "Happy to much belong you fella."

Had Good Reason

Teleconist In Southern England Was Not Taking Any Chances

The Forum, Johannesburg, says some flying bombs were falling in and around a country village in Southern England. An American, buying some cigarettes at the local tobacconist's, noticed that the little man serving him was very shaky and frightened. "Say, Buddy, you don't have to be scared," he said consolingly, "the chances are more than a million to one that you'll miss being hit."

"Don't talk to me about chances," said the tobacconist wryly, "I won the Irish sweep!"

Money And Greatness

The impression prevails that in order to have influence and fame, a man must be in possession of wealth—the more money he has, the greater, and more extended, his reputation as a great citizen.

But this theory is completely blasted by the probate of the will of the late Jack Miner. This famous Kingsville Canadian naturalist's total estate consisted of real estate valued at $10,500, being the Government valuation of his farm in connection with his bird sanctuary which is owned by the Jack Miner Foundation, and personal estate and effects valued at an additional $1,785, made up of personal belongings, cash in bank, and a small insurance policy.

Jack Miner was not blessed with great worldly wealth, but he possessed something far more valuable—the admiration and affection of his fellowmen. He was an outstanding example of a comparatively poor man, of modest education, who rose to the ranks of the internationally famous because he had a great heart full of love for all of God's creatures. He befriended birds and animals, and through his writings and addresses, known in all parts of this continent, he instilled into the minds of men and women a love for the beauties of nature and the responsibilities which human beings bear towards the lower forms of animal and bird life. At the time of his death he was rated Canada's best known private citizen, and one of the five best known in the world. Eddie Guest, the Detroit poet, referred to him as "the best loved Christian in America."

Money is not necessary to true greatness. The life of Jack Miner proves it conclusively.—Guelph Mercury.

Russia Has Good Idea

Is Giving Honors To Generals Instead Of Cash Awards

The New York Herald Tribune says: Great Britain in past years has granted peerages and cash awards to its outstanding war leaders. The total cash grants to the Duke of Wellington came to more than $4,000,000, not including an annuity. Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig received an estate, an earldom and approximately $500,000 in cash. A new wrinkle was devised in Moscow where there is an acute housing shortage. Spacious eleven-story apartment houses are being built in choice sections of the city for the generals who bent the German Army on the eastern front.

TELEPHONE FROM YOUR CAR—The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. has announced its plans for two-way telephone service from any moving truck or private automobile to any telephone number, for installation when men and materials are freed from war production. Permission has been sought to make the installations in 13 cities. A mobile subscriber would have to obtain an operator's radio license, but this would be made easy. The car driver would call a telephone exchange which would connect him with the number requested. Here the driver, while on the road, uses his radio-telephone apparatus which is attached to his dashboard.

Swarms Of Frogs

Village In Britain Had A Lively Time With Invasion

An army of frogs, hundreds of thousands of them, invaded the small village of Newt, near Portluc, Glamorgan. Women with dustpans and brushes, and men and children with sticks and shovels, fought a day-long battle with them.

The frogs, an inch in size, migrated from a meadow, flooded by a storm, to a hayfield on the other side of the village.

Seven houses that stood in their way were "rushed". The frogs entered underneath the back doors, hopped along the passages, and went out under the front doors.

Housewives set up barricades. Newspapers were stuffed under all the doors.

"When I came downstairs my house was alive with frogs," said villager Mrs. George Farr.

"The passage looked like a moving brown carpet, and I had to walk over a seething mass to get to my kitchen. My living room was full of them."

Mrs. John Roberts said: "I got a dustpan and brush and began sweeping them out, but still they came. It was a dreadful experience."—London Daily Mail.

STRAWBERRY PIE—MODERNE

Such dainties of coming spring as those first brave snowdrops and sunny daffodils toasting in the wintry wind, bring with them a longing for all the good things that will come of April showers, May flowers and June sunshine.

Strawberries—red, plump and full of sweet juices are chief among the food products of sunshine. And from dreams of berries ripening in the garden, the thoughts of enthusiastic menu-writers usually travel directly to strawberry pie.

Beginning at the beginning is good logic, so consider the crust. This first step in pie building need not be a stumbling block to even the most inexperienced cook. For an excellent crust—one that is delicious and easy to make as well as particularly appropriate for single crust pies, can be made by blending melted butter and a small amount of sugar with finely crushed corn flakes. The mixture is pressed firmly and evenly around the sides and bottom of the pie pan and is chilled well before adding the filling.

Strawberry Pie
1 corn flake crumb pie shell, 1 quart strawberries
1½ cups water
1 cup sugar
1½ tablespoons cornstarch
1 cup water
1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin

Prepare corn flake crumb pie shell and chill.
Wash and stem berries; slice or chop. Cook one cup of berries with ½ cup water until soft. Mix sugar and cornstarch thoroughly; add strained hot liquid from cooked berries, stirring constantly. Cook, stirring until thick and clear. Add gelatin which has been soaked in ¼ cup water. Cool until mixture begins to congeal; add remaining berries. Turn into corn flake crumb pie shell. Chill. Serve with sweetened whipped cream if desired.

Crumb Pie Shell
1½ cup butter
1½ cup sugar
4 cups corn flakes

Crush corn flakes into fine crumbs; melt butter in pie pan; add sugar and crumbs; mix thoroughly. Press mixture evenly and firmly around sides and bottom of pan. Chill before adding filling.

Find German Weapon

Gun Partly Installed In Coastal Trenches Near English Channel

A German gun designed to fire six-inch shells against London has been found, partly installed, in sandy coastal trenches near the English Channel.

It looks like an oil pipeline. Additional sections of tubing supply "booster" chambers giving initial muzzle velocity of 4,500 feet a second. The range is 32 miles.

Little-known German weapons found include the world's biggest gun, a 1,750-ton railway gun firing an 8½ ton shell 30 miles and used against Sebastopol; a 15-inch rocket projector on a Tiger tank chassis; and a 16-ton, self-propelled mortar firing a projectile of more than a ton 1,400 yards (slightly more than three-quarters of a mile).

FARMS FOR VETERANS

There may have been a time when farming was a hazardous sort of business, operated by rule-of-thumb, but that's certainly not the case in 1945. And it is certainly not the case when it comes to the Veterans' Land Act. This important part of the machinery of rehabilitation is functioning at the present time and will continue to function, with the clear purpose of seeing that the men who elect to turn from war to agriculture are the men who can make a success of it.

There was criticism voiced at the way this aspect was handled after the last war. The pointment arose from the haste in establishing a large number of veterans on the land within 18 months of the end of the war. In this period, 19,000 men were placed on the land. It was also stated that some of the veterans of 1914-18 got land that was poorly suited to agriculture. And there was also the fact that men were placed on the land who were temperamentally unsuited to the life. You have to have an aptitude for being a doctor, a lawyer or a book-keeper. You have to have the knack, and the skill for it.

Another advantage of the present land settlement scheme is the fact that this time there is a trained settlement staff. This was not the case after the last war.

Re-establishment of the veteran of this war is putting stress on the angle of vocational guidance. Look before you leap is the advice given by counsellors when the men discuss the problem of farming with them. They tell him what he is up against, they find out whether he is really going to like the life and whether his wife will like the life. The advantages of farm life are underlined, and the veteran is asked to see the picture in its true perspective.

The government will help the veteran to finance land, buildings, stock and equipment up to $60,000. The maximum amount that can be expended on livestock and equipment is 1,200. The veteran makes a down-payment of ten per cent of the cost of the land and buildings in instalments which may be extended up to 25 years. The rate of interest on this is 3½ per cent. The government absorbs the balance of the cost which is approximately 24 per cent. In addition, if he has complied with the terms of the contract for 10 years the money which he obtained for equipment and livestock becomes an outright grant. After 10 years, or after the veteran has paid all his instalments, which is the longer period, the veteran is given the deed to the property.

But the government's interest goes past the purely financial aspect of the situation. Personal counselling helps the man to know the type of farming he likes best — whether it be in wheat, fruit, livestock or any of the other phases of agriculture.

Rationing helps the FARMER

HERE'S HOW!

- Rationing assures everyone a fair share of scarce foods. Without rationing, farmers might get all the butter they need; they might not get sugar. City dwellers might get sugar but no butter.
- Rationing helps to keep prices steady.
- Rationing has assured farmers sufficient ammunition to protect their crops and livestock.
- Rationing makes it possible for farmers to get coupons to feed harvesters and other transient farm workers.

The FARMER helps Rationing
HERE'S HOW!

- By collecting and turning in the coupons acquired against the use and sale of butter and the sale of honey and rationed maple products.
- By writing to the local Ration Board for application form RB-77 as SOON as they know definitely that transient labour ration will be needed for extra help during the periods of less than two weeks.

Rationing is not intended to add unnecessarily to the burden of Canadian farmers who, faced with shortages of labour, materials and machinery, have continued to respond to repeated calls for greater production.

It is a protection against waste . . . shortages . . . inflation.
